someone something

Pronouns are words that take the place of a noun. Pronouns can do anything that a noun can do. For example, they can be subjects or objects of a verb.

Unlike personal pronouns (e.g. he, she, they), indefinite pronouns do not refer to a specific person or thing already named. They are indefinite words like someone, others, several or few.

Singular indefinite pronouns

The following indefinite pronouns are always singular:

- one
- anyone, everyone, no one, someone
- anybody, everybody, nobody, somebody
- another, the other
- either, neither
- each
- little, less
- much

Plural indefinite pronouns

The following indefinite pronouns are always plural:

- both
- few, fewer
- many
- others
- several

Indefinite pronouns that can be singular or plural

The following indefinite pronouns can be either singular or plural, depending on the context:

- all
- any
- more

- most
- none
- some

Here are some examples:

- All of the cake is gone. [singular idea, since all is referring to cake]
- All of the cupcakes are gone. [plural idea, since all is referring to cupcakes]
- None of the meat has spoiled. [singular idea, since none is referring to meat]
- None of the apples have spoiled. [plural idea, since none is referring to apples]

Possessive indefinite pronouns

Unlike personal pronouns, indefinite pronouns do not have different subject, object and possessive forms.

However, an indefinite pronoun that refers to a person can become possessive by taking the ending 's:

- I found somebody's wallet on the hiking path.
- The server brought everyone's order except Tim's.

MORAL STORY (UNDERLINE INDEFINITE PRONOUNS)

Four cows lived in a forest near a meadow. All were good friends. They were good friends and did everything together . nobody could break their friendship. They grazed together and stayed together, because of which no tigers or lions were able to kill them for food.

But one day, the friends fought and each cow went to graze in a different direction. A tiger and a lion saw this and decided that it was the perfect opportunity to kill the cows. They both hid in the bushes and surprised the cows and killed them all, one by one.

Moral

Unity is strength.
